JSA's interior designers complete Exeter Hospital's new café; part of 27,000 s/f facility expansion

PORTSMOUTH, NH With the help of JSA's interior design studio, Exeter Hospital has a brand new, contemporary café for its patients, visitors and staff. The hospital has grown exponentially over the past five years with the help of JSA's master planning and healthcare architects. The cafeteria has been an area on a long list of renovations that needed updating from its 1970s beginnings.

Relocated from a previous basement location, the new café is centrally placed to provide much better public access while also providing improved, more discreet, service access on the campus. "We worked closely with Judy Rines, the hospital's director of material & construction, to realize her vision for the space," said Katelyn Galante, director of interior design for JSA. "That vision was for a contemporary space washed in natural light with rich dramatic shades of reds, greens, copper and stainless steel, original contemporary artwork and an indoor/outdoor dining experience overlooking lush landscaped gardens."

With seating for 150 people, the café has become a meeting place for Exeter's professionals to relax, unwind, and find solitude. Even when the serving area is closed, there is a vending area for 24-hour service. Some people find themselves gravitating to the café during a break just to collect their thoughts, read a book, soak in some sun, or meet a friend for conversation.

"The new cafeteria is part of an ongoing project to upgrade the hospital, which is now in Phase II of a three-phase project," said Rines. "We are making every effort to provide first-class food service. We want our patients to notice and appreciate our level of care and hospitality when they are in our care."

The new café provides a rich environment for dining, and provides the platform for introducing an innovative wellness program called "Your Health, Your Way" that provides variety and tips for a healthy lifestyle. This new program by Sodexo combines the principals of education, choices, values and culture. Drawing from the hospitality industry, patients staying at Exeter Hospital can expect delicious, fresh, nutritious meals ala "room service."

The cafeteria is inside the 27,000 s/f northwest expansion, which also houses new spaces for food and nutrition, medical records, biomedical services, material management/services and environmental services.

The cost of this phase of the expansion is about $4.5 million.
